Bio-Note

Mohan Dharia, an eminent lawyer, Union Minister and a social worker was born 14 February 1925, in the village named Nate in Raigad District of Maharashtra. His early aspirations on becoming a surgeon came to a standstill when he participated in the Freedom Struggle during 1942 which landed him in jail. He instead pursued law and practiced as one in Mumbai High Court.

He plunged into the Freedom Struggle at the tender age of 16 when him and fellow 'Sevadalis' tried to take charge of the Tehsil Kacheri in Mahad. This led to his imprisonment in 1942. After the sentence he organised a 'Lok Sena' through which he freed the Janjira princely state and served as its external affairs minister.

Although Mohan Dharia started his political career with the Praja Socialist Party, he left the party in 1960 and relinquished from all positions in various offices. He was member of AICC between 1962-75 while Mohan Dharia was executing his duties as General Secretary of the Maharashtra State Congress Committee, he was Election-In Charge for the 1962 General Elections. He was member of the Rajya Sabha from 1964-71 and the Lok Sabha from 1971-79.

A highlight of Mohan Dharia's political career was his staunch opposition to the Thirty Eighth Amendment of the Constitution of India, introduced in 1975 by Prime Minister, Indira Gandhi and was the only minister to oppose and resign from the ministry. His opposition to the imposition of a state of emergency in June 1975 led to his detention by the government with other dissenting leaders such as Morarji Desai, Chandra Shekhar and others. He quit the Congress after the emergency.

Besides his roles as part of the government, Mohan Dharia also played a pivotal role in the formation of 'Confederation of NGOs of Rural India (CNRI) to bring all the NGOs in the rural area together under one umbrella.

Mohan Dharia was also the founder of 'Vanarai' which is a renowned name in the rural development and environment conservation sector. Besides Vanarai, he was also founder president to institutes like Yuva Shakti, Himalayan Adventures and Raktdata Pratisthan.

During 1990-91, Mohan Dharia was Deputy Chairman of the Planning Commission of India. Though his tenure was small, he gave a new direction to the planning process and suggested several programs to alleviate poverty, create employment opportunities with special emphasis on Agriculture, Afforestation, Rural Development and Small Scale Industries sector.

A recipient of Padma Vibhushan in 2005, Mohan Dharia was also conferred the prestigious Indira Gandhi Award for National Integration in 2011.

A voracious reader, his publications include India's Glorious Freedom Struggle and The Post-Independence Era and Fumes and the Fires.

He passed away on 14 October, 2013.
